Senator Ovie Omo-Agege said the National Assembly had no authority to replace the Constitution. The senator got this Amb. Umunna Ojiako-led Nigerian Patriots Association on Wednesday. He was represented by his media aide, Yomi Odunuga. Omo-Agege said that what can be achieved is an amendment to the constitution of the Constitution by the National Assembly. He urged stakeholders to steer the requirements of the new constitution towards constitutional amendment. I am not sure that we, as parliament, have the power to replace the Constitution. We can only make amendments and article 8 of the Constitution. I say this because there are some excellent lawyers in this country who, for some reason, say that we don't even need this to bring about a new constitution. We can't do that. The task required by law is to examine these provisions and bring them into line with global best practices, especially to the extent that they correspond to the views of the majority of Nigerians. So we are not in a position to replace this constitution, but we can only make it up to you. The senator also said that the Senate will consider issues like restructuring if there is a high demand to Nigerians and an exclusive legislative list. But, as I said, most of the issues you have raised here, such as the zones that have existing states, are yet another euphemism for getting back into the regions. We will look to see if this is what most of our people want. You were talking about decentralizing power. The predominance of the views we have received so far is that this 68 they are very wide and we need to shed weight and move them to the simultaneous legislative list. What you need to know about Nairametrics reported last week is that Sokoto state's governor, Aminu Tambuwal, said any plan to transform Nigeria and the constitution must pass through legal due process in the National Assembly. The governor of Ogun State, Prince Dapo Abiodun, unveiled the N339 billion budget for 2021 with the budget for restoration and sustainability labeled the Ogun State Assembly. This was made public by the governor on Wednesday after he presented the House with the budget proposal. He added that the budget would continue to focus on completing as many projects as possible. He had just submitted an appropriation bill for the year 2021, tagged with budgets for this recovery and sustainability in the Ogun State House of Assembly, following inputs from stakeholders across the three senatorial districts of the state. pic.twitter.com/lAWjnF2xkv - Prince Dr. Dapo Abiodun - MFR (@dabiodunMFR) December 2, 2020 What they say about Aggregate spending by the state government is N339 billion, with recurring spending of N162 billion and capital expenditures of N177 billion, the state governor said in his statement. He added that the budget focused on completing the project in the state. The budget will continue to focus on completing as many ongoing projects as possible. They would put forward to the State House of Representatives the most critical projects that we all need to work together to ensure that they are properly funded, he said. He also said that the budget provides an appropriate basis for a recovery from the obvious economic challenges of the current financial year, while ensuring that Ogun State's local economy is sustainable in the future. Rivers State Governor unveiled a 2021 budget worth N448.66 billion at the Rivers State House of Assembly. Rivers State's governor, Nyesom Wike, unveiled a 2021 budget titled Budget for Recovery and Consolidation, worth N448.66 billion to the Rivers State House of Assembly for consideration. Nigeria's news agency reports that the budget represents an increase of more than 20% compared to the revised budget of N300 billion in 2020. What you need to know is that the 2021 budget consists of N305.89 billion for capital expenditure, while N142.78 billion is 2012.78 billion as recurring expenditure. Of the planned amount of capital expenditure, which amounts to 68.18% of the total; public administration sector, N87.7 billion; economic sector, N105 billion; Law and Justice, N1.7 billion; Social sector, N132 billion; deductions/loan repayments, N38 billion. N82.9 billion in the budget for infrastructure provision, including roads, bridges and completion of flyover projects in Okoro-Nu-Odo, Rumuola, and gra nodes, both in the Port Harcourt metropolis. Of the budgeted amount, 76 billion n for personnel costs; N18.8 billion is used for general costs and N47.7 billion for transfers to grants and consolidated revenue charges. On the budget, the Governor said: The 2021 budget also prioritises security and maintains existing efforts to combat uncertainty and keep residents safe and secure. We also deliver the Ogoni/Andoni/Opobo unit road, the Eastern Bypass Dualisation, 6. This means that, with around 68.18% of the total budget earmarked for capital expenditure, this suggests that the current administration is committed to pursuing various capital and development projects to transform the state, promote its economic and social growth and place it among the frontline states of Nigeria.
